American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP) and Community Development Capital Initiative (CDCI). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP/CDCI investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP/CDCI investment was deployed or how many CPP/CDCI dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP/CDCI capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP/CDCI funds were outstanding).

<input type="checkbox"/>	Increase lending or reduce lending less than otherwise would have occurred.	Fulton Financial Corporation, through its affiliate banks, continued to lend to customers under its existing underwriting policies and practices. The CPP funds were not required for this purpose.
<input type="checkbox"/>	To the extent the funds supported increased lending, please describe the major type of loans, if possible (residential mortgage loans, commercial mortgage loans, small business loans, etc.).
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Increase securities purchased (ABS, MBS, etc.).	The receipt of CPP funds in 2008 and the growth in our deposits during 2009 and early 2010 provided a significant amount of liquidity. We increased our investment portfolio between 12-31-08 and 12-31-09, however used maturities and prepayments to fund CPP repayment in 7-10.

<input type="checkbox"/>	Make other investments
<input type="checkbox"/>	Increase reserves for non-performing assets	Fulton Financial Corporation provided reserves for nonperforming assets in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. The receipt of the CPP funds had no impact on those reserves.
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Reduce borrowings	The receipt of CPP funds in 2008 and the growth in our deposits during 2009 and early 2010 provided a significant amount of liquidity. As a result, we were able to decrease our other borrowings.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Increase charge-offs	While Fulton Financial Corporation experienced increased loan charge-offs in 2009 and 2010, those were strictly a result of application of generally accepted accounting principles and the impact of the economic environment on our loan customers and portfolio.
<input type="checkbox"/>	Purchase another financial institution or purchase assets from another financial institution
<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Held as non-leveraged increase to total capital	As Fulton Financial Corporation was able to fund customer loan demand without these funds, they represented an increase in our total capital.
