American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP investment was deployed or how many CPP dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP funds were outstanding).

What actions were you able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds?

Securant Bank & Trust was well capitalized as of December 31, 2008. Without TARP funding the bank would not have been able to increase our loan portfolio through 2009, reducing our ability to fund growth in loans to small business and consumers in our market. Further, this would have severely hampered our ability to meet profit goals in the current period which are assisting the bank to recover from asset quality issues caused by the recent economic downturn.

What actions were you able to take that you may not have taken without the capital infusion of CPP funds?

Without the capital infusion that the TARP funds provided, Securant Bank & Trust would not have been able to continue our strategic growth oriented direction. In fact a capital raise, in a very difficult market would have been required to meet our growth objectives.

Please describe any other actions that you were able to undertake with the capital infusion of CPP funds.

As a well capitalized bank we were able to expand our market and our product line through out this difficult period. We are bringing community banking services to markets that have been hurt by banking consolidations. We have expanded services to baby boomers who are retiring in a period of uncertainty, and to businesses providing jobs to a struggling economy.
