American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP investment was deployed or how many CPP dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP funds were outstanding).

What actions were you able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds?

There were no actions that the institution was able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds.

What actions were you able to take that you may not have taken without the capital infusion of CPP funds?

Receipt of the CPP capital infusion provided the institution the capital necessary to increase the Bank's lending efforts while maintaining its capital at "well capitalized" levels for regulatory purposes. The institution was able to invest the funds in securities and utilize the additional borrowing capacity afforded from the funds for loans that met the Bank's lending criteria. During the twelve month period ending December 31, 2009, the Bank's loan portfolio increased by $29 million or 4.4%.

Please describe any other actions that you were able to undertake with the capital infusion of CPP funds.
