American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP investment was deployed or how many CPP dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP funds were outstanding).

What actions were you able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds?

The infusion of CPP funds in March 2009 increased the Bank's capital to a level in excess of FDIC well-capitalized guidelines. As a result, the Bank was not required to increase capital as part of a consent order issued in October 2009.

What actions were you able to take that you may not have taken without the capital infusion of CPP funds?

The infusion of CPP funds allowed the Bank to continue lending at a reduced level.

Please describe any other actions that you were able to undertake with the capital infusion of CPP funds.

With the infusion of CPP funds, the Bank was able to avoid any layoffs or reductions in base pay for current employees.
